Constitutionalist Sympathizers Take Possession Without the Firing of Single Shot

FEDERAL FORCES EVACUATE THE BORDER TOWN

Sympathizers at Douglas Crossed Line and Upon Arrival of State Troops, Established a Provisional Municipal Gov.

of Disorders—Refugees Urged to Return.

Douglas, Ariz., March 12.—Agua Prieta fell to nearly 1,060 constitutionalist sympathizers who crowded the border from Douglas today. No shot was fired, and General Gleda, commanding the federal garrison, with about 600 men, evacuated the town, leaving thirty rural police to guard federal interests.

stitution' is the cry resounding through the streets of the little Mexican town.

While the troops paraded the streets in hilarious fashion Colonel Galles said that no American need have fear of disorders. He has sent word to Douglas for all refugees to return and be assured of protection. A provisional municipal government and customs house service will be established immediately.

Federal Guards Join Rebels.

After the surrender of the border town, 650 state troops under Elias Galles arrived and a provisional municipal government was set up. The federal guards were ordered to leave by General Ojeda deserted to the rebel standard and the six who refused to do so were shot. The rest were ejected from the town. Unarmed men from Douglas crossed the border tonight and reinforced the rebel garrison.

SUING FOR PEACE.

Rebel Governor of Coahuila Surrounded by Federal Troops.

Mexico City, March 12.—Surrounded by government troops, Venustiano Carranza, the rebel governor of Coahuila, today sent word to the federal administration and intimated what appeared to be a formidable revolt, saying he would sue for peace if his report, Carranza is said to have 5,000 men.

The new arrivals found 18,000 rounds of ammunition, some rifles and camp supplies left by the federals in their haste. Tonight those in control of the border town and port are celebrating

AGREED NOT TO TELL
CHIEF KOHLER'S WIFE.
Scheerer Testifies Regarding the Incidents at His Home.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 12.—Samuel D. Scheerer, husband of the woman whom it is charged Chief of Police Joseph P. Egan arrested last night, today agreed not to tell

Police Fred Konrad was called to the scene and left the civil service commission his version of the charges against the police chief. The commission's attorney, JAMES M. DEVLIN, said that the charges against the police chief, "were not substantiated."

Police Commissioner DAVID L. DUFFY, Maurice Budwig, first witness for the defense, stated that he had prescribed the punishment for the sergeant at the time he had on February 2, 1912, the date of his first alleged visit to the home.

On the night of June 5, 1912, Scheer said he was called to the home after ringing the doorbell for was taken the sergeant had abruptly left the chamber. The sergeant left the door open and the sergeant's presence of McDewitt tomorrow to hear a reprimand from the president of the police board.

The committee on rules had reported to the board that the sergeant had been reprimanded for the attempt that an attempt had been made by a member of the house to bribe him, had been suspended and expelled from the house.

He was recommended that he be reprimanded in open session and suspended until May 1, 1913, when the committee had apologized to the senate.

several minutes, and, going through the kitchen, he took a box of ice from the ice box in the kitchen.

"You've got me," Kohler exclaimed, "and I'm not going to let you go. You are going to do with me."

"They want upstairs to where Mrs. Schearer is," said the man. "Now where is Mrs. Schearer?"

"Ed Kohler and his wife as being in my attic," said the man.

"Where?" Schearer left the house, Schearer said, and during the conversation which followed, the witness said, "I thought I heard that the man was from his wife."

"I said: 'You can rest assured that I will never leave behind me from me,' Schearer said. 'I thought it was' reached late this afternoon, Senator McDevitt rose to a question of privilege.

"In relation to the matter about to be acted upon by the senate, my commission is clear and I am not going to make it at the second hearing before the joint committee on rules was considered. I have to fight for the thing I have gotten, and expect to as long as I live. I bear no malice toward anyone connected with this senate."

"This said, the senator walked out of the senate chamber, and the committee were adopted by a voice vote.

Celebrated Actress Sustains Painful But Not Serious Injuries.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 12.—Sarah Bernhardt, the noted French actress, suffered painful but probably not serious injuries in an automobile accident here today. She was on her way to Los Angeles from Venice for the evening performance at the Pantages theatre when her automobile collided with a heavy truck.

The wrecked and the actress suffered two wrenched ankles,

The Kiss. SA DR Wright, who says that "symbol of affection so highly appreciated by practically all civilized people, that is used to quell fear, soothe grief, and inspire courage," so long regarded as pleasant and harmless, has been proved by unsentimental persons to be not only dangerous but under certain conditions absolutely dangerous."

Dr. Wright goes on to tell of cases which have come under his personal observation in which dread diseases were communicated by kisses. He urges that those who have contagious diseases should be particularly careful in kissing others.

A lacerated lip and bruises on the body, after receiving medical attention, have been treated tonight, but her act was placed last on the bill so that she could regain her composure from the shock of the accident.

CRISIS IS BELIEVED TO

Fortress Will Either Fall or Turkish Will Attempt to Get Away.

London, March 12.—News from Adrianople, the invaded Turkish town, is meagre, but despatches from Constantinople say it is believed that the end of the present week will witness the conclusion of the siege.

The End of a names bridge. Southwark bridge, which will soon be pulled down and rebuilt, will go unwept, for it has no beauty, no associations, and motorists abuse it because of its awkwardness. It is a bridge of names and twists away from Queen's street at a bad angle. It is an obscure and plebeian bridge. It is on the day of the coronation process, when London bridge was in the quiet and comely old houses on the north approach, now the haunt of Dickens' comedians, with a few old-fashioned conservative City men (apparently) in the company of the actresses or a desperate attempt by Shubert-Pasha to break through the lines of the allies.

The allies' reply to the powers regarding mediation is again delayed and will not be decided before Friday and there is little doubt that before European diplomacy can get to work on the problem Adrienne will be in possession of the fort.

The Turks, while seemingly prepared for another revolution, are utilizing the situation to their advantage to prevent the Serbian army from assisting the Montenegrins in their attack on Soutari.

ently insists on inhibiting. And the picturesque tourist, who does not want to get the impressive near view of the mountainous outlines of the Sierrita de Guadalupe with its black domes or minarets over the opening, whence trains run in and out of the city, is told to get the view in the year of Waterloo (there was a "cold collation" ceremony) and it was long reckoned a wonder in Ironwork, because the "collation" was a picnic. It was one of the last London bridges to levy a toll. It served
